

Hi everyone!

I am Áron, Réka's godson, and I'm really happy to be here with you on this special day.

Although... to be honest, every day with my godmother is special and exciting, because Réka is the best godmother in the whole world.

Some of the greatest adventures of my life are thanks to you. When I visited Los Angeles, you took me to so many amazing places that I will never forget. And whenever you come to Hungary, you always bring me the coolest presents.

I love that whenever we are together, we are always joking around, being silly, and teasing each other. Sometimes it doesn't even feel like you are an adult - it feels like you are my big sister.

There is just one thing about you that I don't like... you worry about me all the time! Relax! I am a big boy now. I can take care of myself. You don't have to wrap me in bubble wrap!

But I know you only do it because you love me, and I love you very much too.

Things are a little trickier with Andy because he speaks English and I speak Hungarian. But I know you love me too, because you carried me around America on your shoulders whenever my little legs started hurting after about two minutes of walking.

My favorite story about us is from the day you were looking after me. You made me dinosaur-shaped chicken with rice, but I only like rice with corn. The problem was... I didn't know the English word for corn.

So, I tried really hard to say the Hungarian word, kukorica, with the most English accent I could.

You just looked at me, completely confused... even though I was saying it with my best English pronunciation!

In the end, you texted my godmother and asked, "What the fuck is kukorica?"

But don't worry... now I know that kukorica in English is corn.

I wish you both a lifetime of happiness and lots of amazing adventures together.

And please... take me with you on some of them!

I love you both!
